

READ ABOUT AUSTRALIA:

Capital Cities of Australia

Matching activity

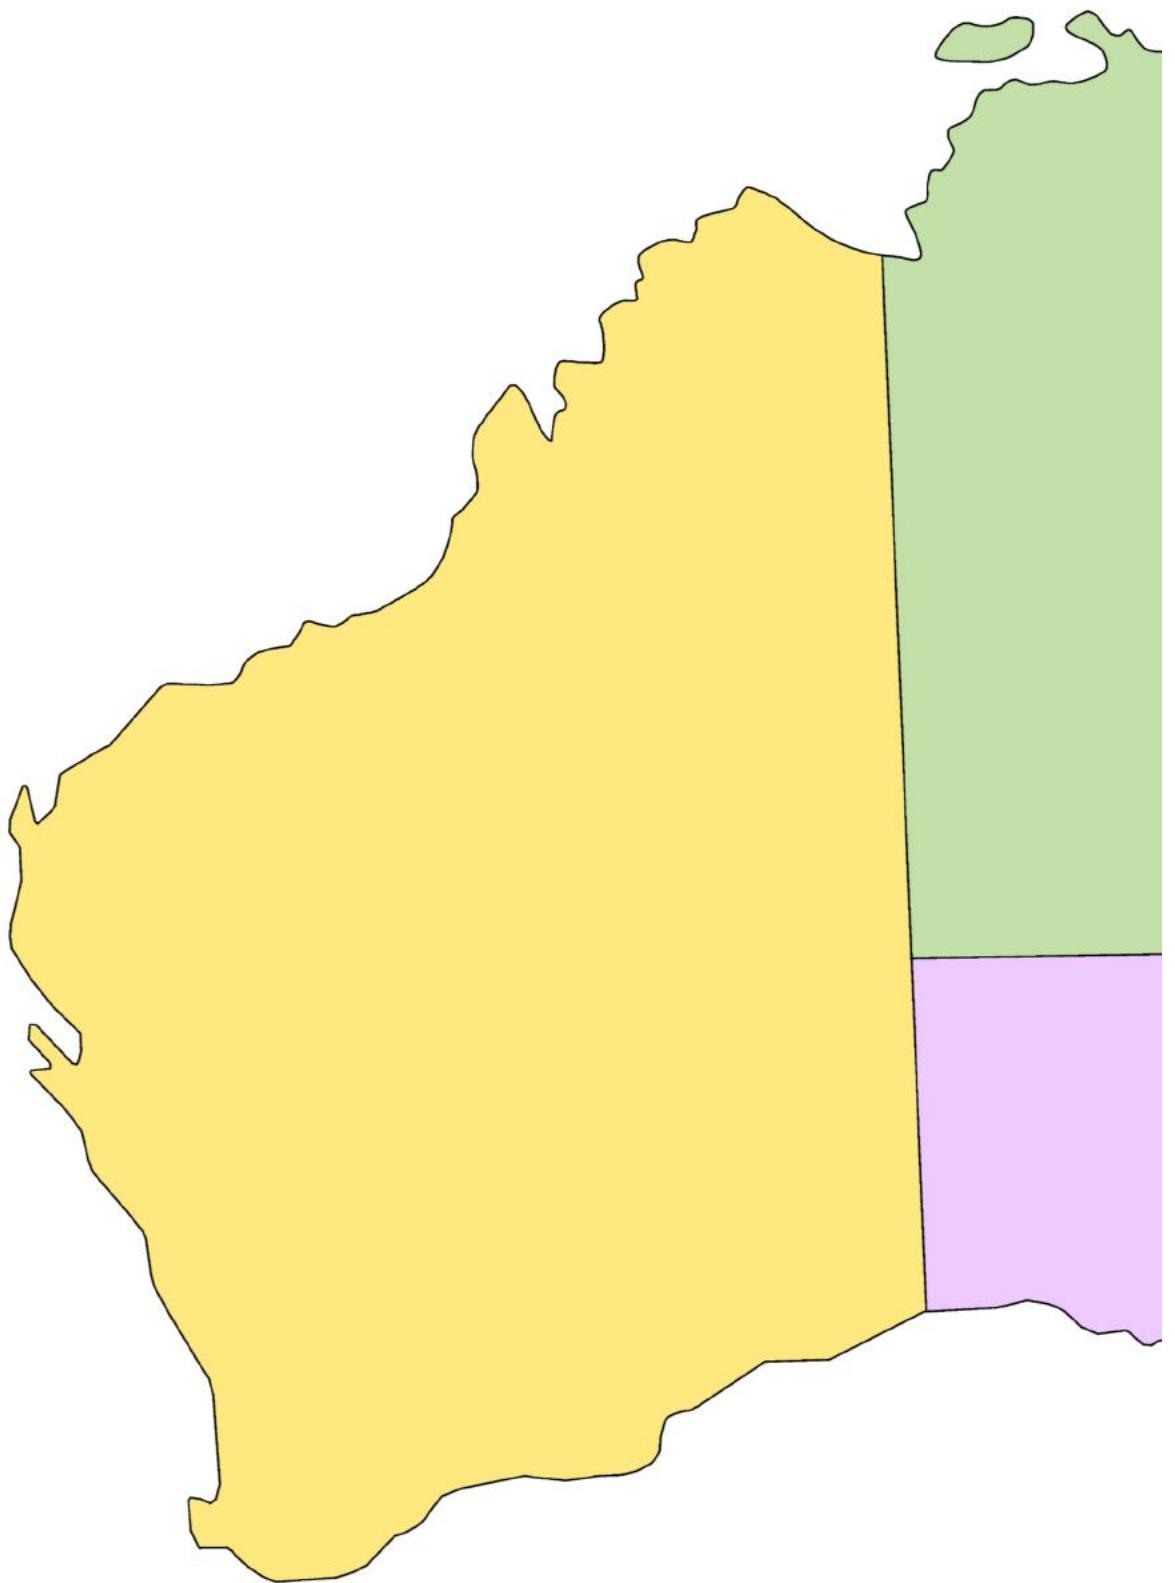

This is a post-reading activity, especially useful for learners who are still gaining confidence around names and locations.

You could project a large outline map onto a screen, draw an outline, or print the next two pages onto A3 (or even better, A2). Learners add the state or territory, capital city and photograph (cut out, laminated, with some way to attach to board). You can mark the capital city locations, or use the red dots to for extra challenge.

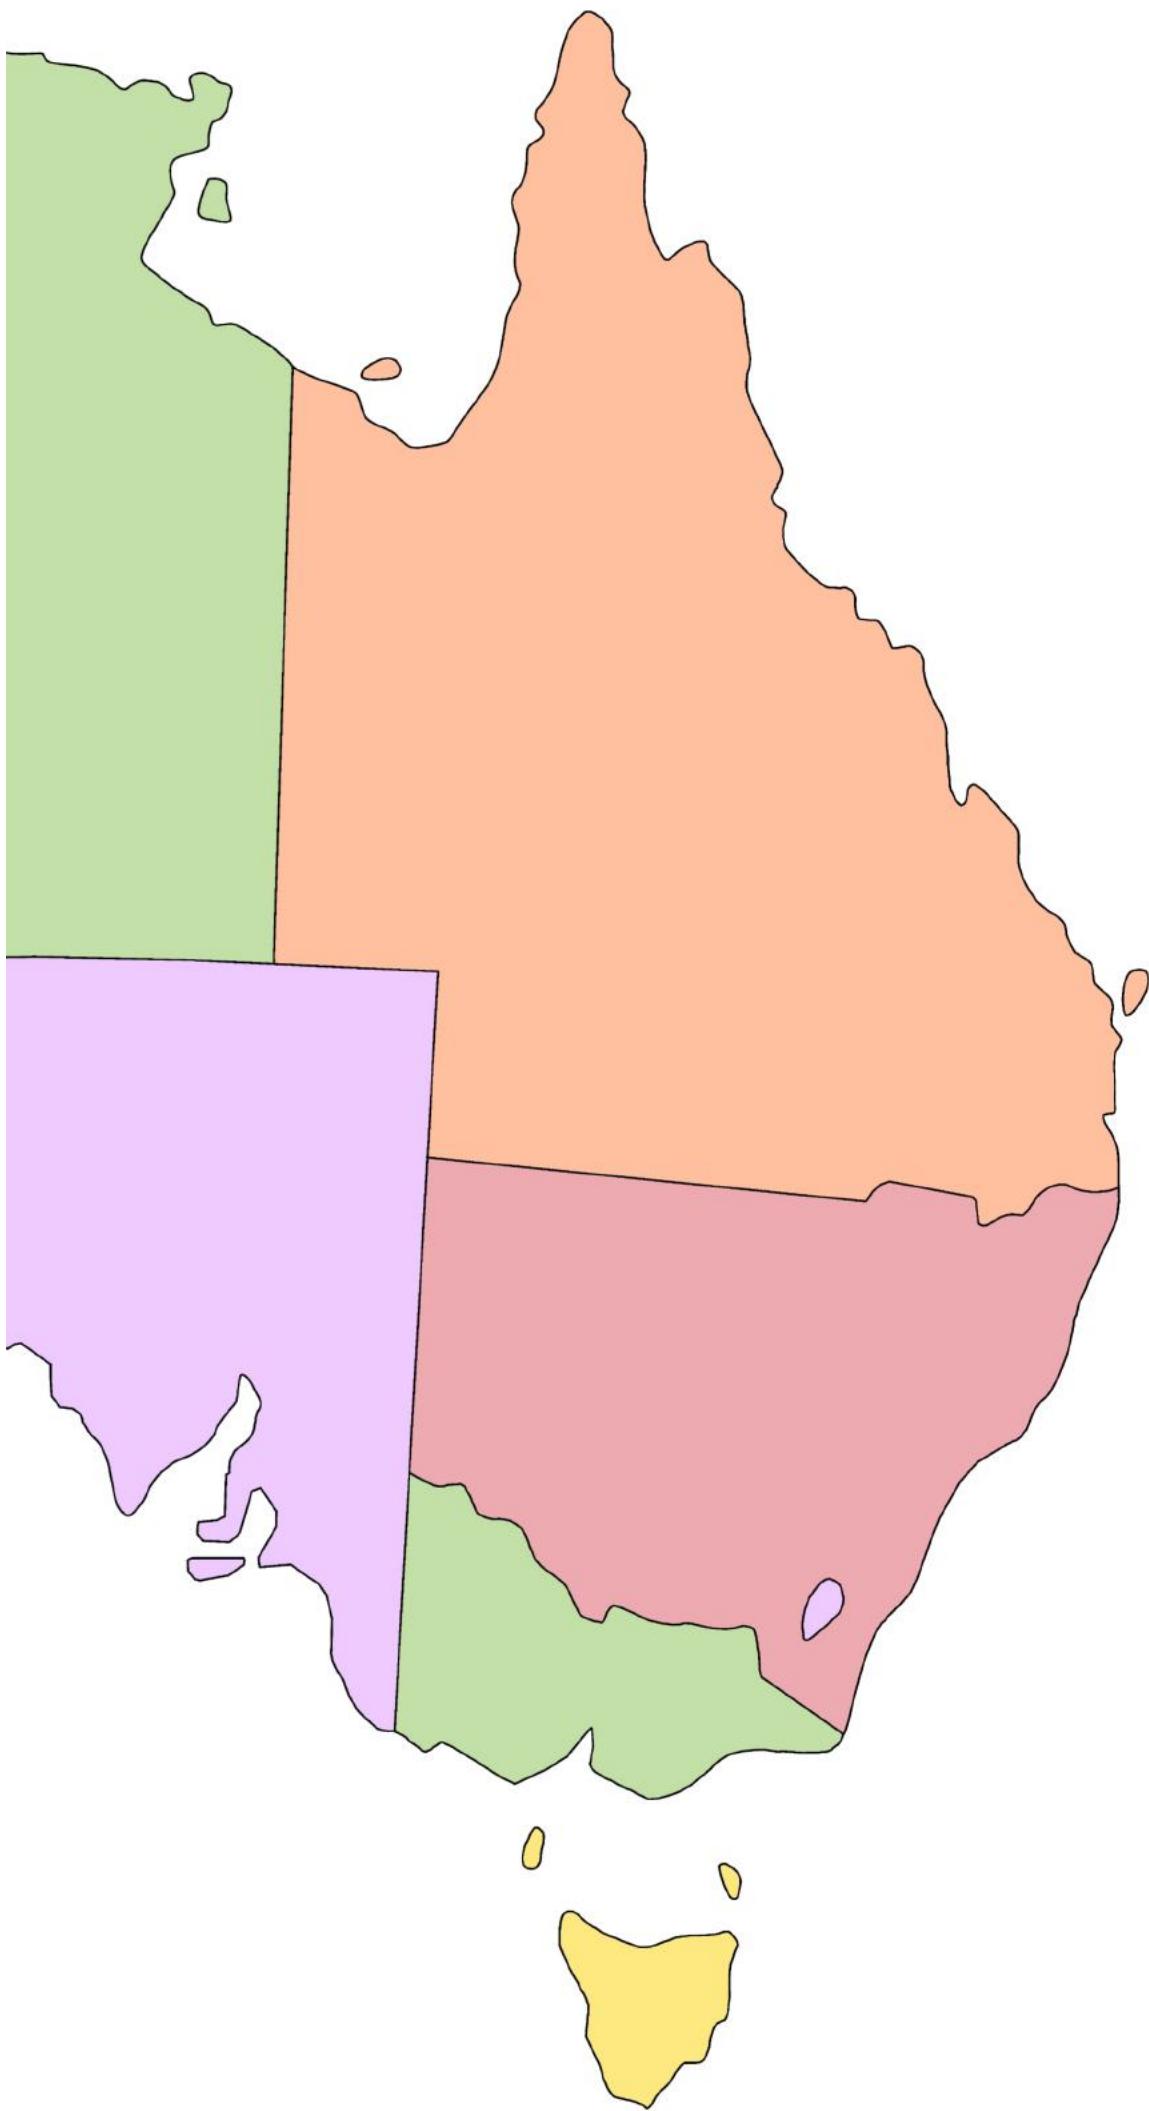

Use your own city photos if you have better ones, and change the spelling of the First Nations names if you use a different version. (Checking of First Nations names from the book is encouraged! Many of us are learning here.)

The Deposit Photos photographers are listed in the back of the book.
The map is also from Deposit Photos (akhtaransari).
Main text font is Heinemann Special.

Spelling of First Nations place names can vary: please check for local preferences and make any changes needed.

For more activities: links to fun downloadable worksheets and audio are on the back page of the book.

Thanks! Any feedback to me, Clare Harris:
